HOWE SCHOOL ALUMNI.

A Dinner at the Bates, with Some Interesting Discussions.

The alumni of Howe School to the number of thirty-five sat down to their annual dinner in the Bates House yesterday for the eleventh time. Rev. J. H. McKenzie, rector of the school, presided, and the invited guests were Bishop Francis, Prof. Clarence J. Blake, of Harvard University, Aquilla Jones, Henry C. Adams and W. W. Hammond, the latter of whom has been head master of the school until 1899.

The principal address was by Dr. Blake, who, in addition to being a trustee of the school, is a surviving nephew of John and James Howe, who made it possible for the school to be established. He began by relating the history of the Howe family in Lima, saying that John Howe, a graduate of Harvard, was a neer in Indiana, coming to this State seventy-four years ago, when Lagrange county was a wilderness. His library he brought in his saddle-bags. He was a lawyer, but his great ambition was to start a ol which would live after him. He prospered, became a banker and died without accomplishing his purpose, but the present Howe School was established by widow. Dr. Blake then discussed 'Ideals in Education," holding that the ideal education consisted of a training for good citizenship. Howe School had an he said, which embraced an education along the lines of both church and state. He said the military branch propatriotism, while the church conimparted a seriousness much to be lesired. He complimented the school on its work and the high standing its graduates had taken in the higher institutions of Bishop Francis spoke briefly on the interest which was felt in the southern Indiana diocese for the Howe School and the good results obtained by those who had attended it.

Aquilla Jones, one of the trustees of the school, confined his brief talk to the benefits of athletics in connection with school life and the part such sports play in making the characters of the boys. He said it required hard work, careful training and control of temper to make a boy a good sportsman, and that ...e development of these qualities would have a lasting effect on the character and life of the student. W. W. Hammond, the former head master of the school, spoke briefly on "Honor as the Principle in School Government." He said it had been his experience that honor among schoolboys was not only the rule, but was susceptible of high cultivation and that it followed that college men as a rule had finer perceptions of the term han those not so favorably situated. Henry C. Adams talked briefly on the advantages of a college education in business life, telling several humorous anecdotes of the sense of superiority felt by some college men on starting out in business life. The point he made was that as soon as ense of superiority had disappeared the true merit of the collegiate education was apparent in the facility with which the man took to any line of work. Dr. J. E. Cravens spoke on "The Howe school in the Late War," giving the information that twenty-seven graduates and students of the school had taken part in the Spanish war either as officers or pri-

NEW WORKS BOARD.

Members Took the Oath of Office Yesterday Morning.

The members of the new Board of Public Works were sworn into office yesterday morning. Previous to the open session of the new board the members held a private session, at which several men were present. Those who were invited were appointed to various places, as follows: Clerk of the board, C. H. Spencer; superintendent of streets, George R. Herpick; assistant, M. E. Loughlin; clerk, John T. Brennan; chief of bureau of assessments, Myron D. King; sweeping and sprinkling inspectors, J. J. Bauer and William Flynn. All of the men were reappointed with the exception of Bauer, and he succeeds C. A. Garrard, who resigned to became a traveling salesman. Flynn and Bauer will divide their work and each will receive $80 a month. City Controller Johnson and City Engineer Jeup took new oaths of office yesterday. The Board of Works will make a few more minor appointments to-morrow

SESSION WAS BRIEF.

The Council Had a Bare Quorum and Did Nothing.

When the Council was called to order last night there was just a quorum present. After the roll call a motion was made to adjourn, and this was seconded and carried. There was no business attended to and nothing of importance considered President Crall stated that while no special session of the Council was mentioned, it may be probable that he will call one as soon as the committee on contracts and franchises is ready to report on the gas ordinance. Chairman Evans, of the committee, said no report will be made until a few more pressure tests are made in the city and the committee has a chance to meet again and decide upon what amendments to make. It has not been decided when to hold the next meeting of the committee, but Chairman Evans may call a meeting for Wednesday evening.

New Gas Proposition.

Mayor Taggart will investigate to-day the proposition of a company to purchase the Consumers' Gas Trust Company. The proposition, which was made by men who do not care to have their names made known at this time, is to pay off all the indebtedness of the stockholders, pay the nish 1,000,000 more feet of gas a day than is now being furnished by that company. Officials of the Consumers' Gas Trust Company will not discuss the matter further than to say that a sale of the stock and plant has not been considered.

NEW SCHOOL BOARD.

Jacob P. Dunn Will Serve as the Deputy Auditor.

The new Indianapolis School Board met at noon yesterday and organized. George W. Sloan was elected president. The other officers selected were A. M. Sweeney, vice president; Frank L. Reisner, secretary; John E. Cleland, school director, and Albert Baker, attorney. City Controller Johnson becomes ex officio auditor of the board and his bond was approved, as well as the bonds of Mr. Cleland and County Treasurer Koehne, who is the ex officio treasurer of the board. The salary of the secretary was fixed at $1,500 a year. The school director's salary was fixed at $2,100 a year, subject to increase after the first six months. The deputy auditor of the board will receive appointed to this place by Controller Johnson, the auditor of the board. Under the law three members of the board will retire Dec. 31, 1901, and two will retire on Dec. 1, 1903. The commissioners drew lots for the long and short terms, as follows:

Two-year Terms-Commissioners Moores, Sweeney and Sickles. Four-year Terms-Commissioners Emrich

The board will have the buildings and school property appraised and instructed the director to have this done at a cost not to exceed $150. The time for the annual examination for teachers' licenses was fixed at the last Saturday in April. Commisioners Sweeney and Moores were appointed a committee on rules. The new board will meet on the first and third Fridays of each

STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE DI-VIDED INTO TWO FACTIONS.

The Contests for President and Se retary of the Board Are Attructing Attention.

The annual meeting of the Indiana State Board of Agriculture, which will be held in Room 12 at the State capitol at 10 o'clock this morning, will bring to a close the warmest fight for the election of a president and secretary of the board within its history. Since 1897, when Charles Downing, of Greenfield, and W. W. Stevens, of Salem, were both candidates for the presidency of the board, receiving a tie vote and Mr. Stevens resigned in favor of Mr. Downing, the board has been divided into two factions, Mr. Downing said to be representing the lawyers, bankers and merchants of the board, and Mr. Stevens the farmers or agricultural interests. Each year these respective candidates have been put forward by their factions, and last year after a hard fight Mr. Stevens succeeded in defeating Mr. Downing for the presidency by a vote of nine to seven. To-day's fight is centered in the same candidates, with the difference that both of the gentlemen are aspiring to the secretaryship of the board.

To make the fight more interesting the opposing candidates for the presidency this year-Mr. Aaron Jones, of South Bend, the master of the National Grange Association, and J. C. Haines, of Lake, Ind .are both factional representatives, and, as a consequence, each of them has allied y $300,000 and in addition agree to fur- himself with his factional candidate for 23 1883, 11,247; horses, Jan. 23, 1898, 1,303.

> As it stands the fight is between Stevens and Jones on the one side as against Downing and Haines on the other. There being but eight directors to be elected every effort is being put forth by each side to capture them. When it is stated that both Mr. Downing and Mr. Stevens are Democrats it will be seen that politics have been eliminated from the fight. Mr. Jones, the Stevens faction candidate for president of the board, is a Republican. and Mr. Haines, the opposing candidate, is a Democrat, and as most of Mr. Stevens's faction are Republicans he is placed in the rather anomolous position of a Democrat depending almost entirely upon Republican support. Directors are to be elected in eight districts. In the first district J. C. Haines, of Lake, Ind., will oppose Mr. Gualtney, of Posey county. Mr. Haines represents the Downing faction and Mr. Gualtney is allied with Mr. Stevens. In the second district it is said that the Downing forces have no opposition to their candidate, Mason J. Niblack, of Vincennes. The third district is the home of Mr. Stevens, who lives at Salem, and he has no opposition. The fourth district has three candidates-I. N. Brown, of Franklin, who is supposed to be friendly to Mr. Downing, A. Robinson, of Franklin, whom the Stevens forces taink will help them, and Cal Worral, of Indianapolis, who is said to be friendly to neither of the candidates. In the seventh district H. B. Howland, who is thought to favor Mr. Stevens, will oppose John Prior, of Indianapolis. The fourteenth district will have two candidates in Mr. Joseph Cunningham, of Loree, who up to the present has kept both sides guessing as to who he would support, and Cott Barnett, of Logansport, who is thought to be in line with Mr. Stevens. In the fifteenth district C. B. Benjamin, of Crown Point, or the Downing faction, will oppose Aaron Jones, of South Bend, who, n case of his election, will support Mr. Stevens. The sixteenth district also has three candidates in J. E. MacDonald, of their usual custom of extensive New Year's Ligonier, Cal Husselman, of Auburn, and Don Hitchcock, of Angola, the latter two being counted upon by the Stevens forces. The fight last night had centered on the fourth and fifteenth districts, for it is contended that whoever elects the directors in these two districts will practically be master of the situation. Both sides seem confident and each side intimates that the

NOT A PART OF TRUST

THE UNITED STATES ENCAUSTIC TILE WORKS WILL STAY OUT.

John J. Cooper Opposed to Trusts-The Prospectus, However, Includes the Local Concern.

The United States encaustic tile works, of this city, will not be a member of the gigantic tile trust which is being formed by Thomas J. Lovett, of Chicago. Information comes from New York to the effect that the new combination will be fully as large as that which was attempted some months ago. At that time there was a company under formation called the American Art Tile Company, which was to be capitalized at $7,000,000. A short time ago it was announced in New York that the scheme had fallen through.

According to information from the East it has been decided to take the matter up again and a prospectus has been issued which gives the names of those concerns which it is intended will become members of the projected consolidation.

The following list is given: American Encaustic Tiling Company, United States encaustic tile works, the Mosaic Tile Company, Trent Tile Company, Robertson Art Tile Company, Providential Tile Comapny, Old Bridge Enamel Brick and Tile Company, Cambridge Tile Manufacturing Company, Star Encaustic Tile Company, Beaver Falls Art Tile Company, New York Vitrified Tile Company, Maywood Art Tile Company, Tarrytown the Company, Penn Tile Company, and Art Marble Com-

The prospectus states that options have been secured on all the concerns doing business, and it is the intention to consolidate these companies under one company, to be incorporated under the laws of New Jersey. The prospectus estimates that under the present prices the net earnng of the company would be $465.000 annually, and the savings as a result of the combination would be $310,000. John J. Cooper, president of the United States encaustic tile works, denied emphatically last night that his company was to become a part of the trust. He said that in the first place he was opposed to trusts of any character, and in the second place he believed the works here could realize better profits and yield more satsfactory results generally by staying out
